Victoria Girl Tops Province In Scholarships

Department of Education
 Announces Exam Results

Generous scholarships showered on British Columbia high school students yesterday as results of examinations were announced by the Department of Education.

For the first time students reaped the benefit of the large scholarship fund set up by the Chris Spencer Foundation.

Two special awards, each valued at $2,000 are to be announced soon. Fifteen other Spencer Foundation

Scholarships of $225 were awarded. They were added to 3175 scholarships for general proficiency granted by the University of British Columbia. Each of the 15 top students in the province thus received $400.

HIGHEST OF ALL

Highest of them all was Victoria's Beverly Joan Fulton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Fulton, 2134 Ridge Road. She had an average of 95 per cent at Victoria High School. Second in the province was Peter Robert Grantham of Vancouver, with 94.9 per cent.

Similar scholarships were granted for the leading students in each of 13 areas in the province. Highest of these was Victoria's Elaine Marion Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. H. Moore, 1056 Deal Street. Miss Moore, 18, and a student at Mount Douglas High School, was only 2/10 of 1 per cent below Miss Fulton.

AREA WINNERS

Other students who won $400 area scholarships were Audrey Norma Twa, Ganges, with 92.5 per cent; Anna Jean Zelofka, Fernie; David Charles Davenport, Penticton; Gwendolyn Alexandra Rowles, Kelowna; John Glaser, Abbotsford; Robert Stanley Grano, Langley; George Lee, Vancouver; Richard Burton Meyer, Vancouver; Mary Breckon Winch, Vancouver; Francis Duncan Forbes, New Westminster; Howard Norton Rundle, Vancouver; James Herbert Portelance, Ocean Falls.

The Department of Education's announcement said 112 students completing their courses obtained more than 80 per cent this year as compared with 74 last year.

BIG PRIZES

Students who have won any of the 15 awards listed above may also win the $2,000 scholarships which are payable at $400 a year over five years, provided the student maintains satisfactory standards.

In the event that one of these general scholarship winners is granted one of the two special $2,000 awards, the general scholarship will be passed down to the next student in order of merit.

The department did not state who they would be.

Ottawa Calling Tenders For Services Barracks

OTTAWA, July 21 (CP).—The Defence Department called today for tenders for new army and air force barracks to accommodate the thousands of recruits expected to join the armed forces over the next few months.

Cost of the new buildings was estimated to be more than $2,000,000. In addition to a series of 250-man barracks blocks, a supplementary program of renovating older service quarters also has been initiated.

Details of the barracks construction program follow:

Barrickfield (Kingston), Ont.—Barracks block to house army recruits undergoing basic training, $300,000.

Camp Borden, Ont.—Barracks block for armored corps personnel, $300,000.

Shilo, Man.—Barracks block for Royal Canadian Artillery, $300,000.

Leopold, Heir
Return Home

BRUSSELS, Belgium, July 22 (Saturday) (CP).—King Leopold landed on Belgian soil today from exile.

A twin-engine Belgian army plane touched down at 7:19 a.m. Belgian time (8:19 p.m. Friday EDT) at the military airport, Haren, near Brussels.

A second plane carrying Crown Prince Baudouin, heir to the throne, landed a few minutes later.

New Vessel to Offer Improved Service

Here is an artist's version of the Princess of Nanaimo, being built for the C.P.R. in Scotland for service between Nanaimo and Vancouver. The vessel will be operating by early next Summer. She will have two-deck accommodation for more than 100 cars, while the two upper decks will carry 1,500 passengers. Her single funnel contains a soot eliminator and extractor. To be launched in September, the Princess of Nanaimo is slated to reach this coast sometime in April.

Rejected Offer Puzzles Ottawa

OTTAWA, July 21 (CP).—Government officials were "surprised and puzzled" today by United States rejection of a second Canadian offer to help with transport planes for the trans-Pacific airlift for Korea.

But final plans for implementation of the first offer — of eight North Stars — and 300 men from the R.C.A.F.'s 426 Transport Squadron — were announced by the Defence Department. They will fly a route from Tacoma, Wash., to Tokyo via the Aleutians. (See picture, Page 2.)

The second offer involved two or three four-engine planes now used by Canadian Pacific Airlines in the Pacific. Canada, officials said, offered to provide them, apparently free, to the United Nations — in effect the United States — for the same long haul.

They said they were surprised and puzzled when the answer came back that Washington could not use them since they are passenger planes and can't be turned into cargo carriers.

The planes, one official said, could have flown four round trips a week.

Meanwhile, the air force, after consultations in Washington and here, said 426 Squadron will operate from McChord Field, Tacoma. The squadron is gathering in its flock of North Stars, including one due back tomorrow from a three-week training flight to Cairo.

The squadron will move as a unit from its home base to McChord Field with six North Stars slated to make the first flight to the West Coast.

Nearly 200 groundcrew and 100 aircrew will be flown to McChord Field, with equipment required to maintain the aircraft. Most of the groundcrew will remain at McChord but a small number may be placed at Tokyo and at touchdown points in Alaska.

A meeting of the union to discuss the new offer has been set for Monday at 8 p.m. in the Britannia Branch of the Canadian Legion.

ATTEND MEETING

Present at yesterday's meeting were members of the exchange, representatives of the Victoria Carpenters' Association, a union bargaining committee and 11 carpenters from the union.

Union members demanded a wage increase to $1.68 an hour, in addition to dropping the clause from the contract to "bring them in line with the wage scale paid Vancouver and some U.P.-land carpenters."

The Exchange, in a letter to Mr. Finerty, stated that "should you wish to re-open negotiations, it will be necessary for employees of G. H. Wheaton Company to return to work."

"The Exchange is not prepared to meet your bargaining committee until work is resumed."

PICKETING CONTINUES

Picketing is continuing on projects currently being undertaken by George Wheaton, said Union President Ernest Oliver, last night.

General belief is that action against Wheaton is a test case against the industry — an action that could cause a general city-wide walkout of carpenters and thereby a possible 3,000 construction workers in the area out of work.

A recent conciliation award by the Labor Relations Board offered carpenters $1.61 per hour with the inclusion of the work-stoppage clause in the union contract.

This award was rejected by the union but accepted by the Exchange, who agreed to start paying the carpenters the $1.61 an hour rate as of July 1.

After the union rejection of the award, the Exchange decided to turn down the award.

Said Exchange President J. A. Pollard: "Since they (the union) have rejected the conciliation award we have also now rejected it."

Belief among some union members is that unless an agreement can be reached by the 11th hour, a strike throughout the city is inevitable.

"It looks pretty hopeless," said one source.

LONDON, July 21 (AP).—Lord Mackintosh of Halifax, chairman of the National Savings Committee, said tonight this country soon may be on a semi-war economy.

City Carpenters Given Final Exchange Offer

Striking city carpenters received a new contract offer from the Victoria Building Industries' Exchange following two and one-half hours of negotiations Friday.

The newest offer was a flat $1.63 per hour and indicated willingness to drop the contentious work-stoppage clause from the new agreement.

The striking carpenters, employed by contractor George Wheaton, have demanded the omission of the work-stoppage clause in addition to a wage rate of $1.68 per hour.

SAYS MEETING FAILURE

Jack Finerty, secretary of Local 1598 of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners' Union, termed the meeting a "failure" yesterday and added that the group had reached "no agreement" in an effort to send the struck carpenters back to work.

The Exchange offer, which was passed unanimously by its members, is a "final one" and they informed the union that "if this offer is not satisfactory to your membership, we would suggest that you immediately call for a strike vote."

A meeting of the union to discuss the new offer has been set for Monday at 8 p.m. in the Britannia Branch of the Canadian Legion.

U.S. Offensive Seizes Centres On Korea Front

But See-Saw Battle Forces
Other Americans to Retreat

TOKIO, July 22 (Saturday) (CP).—From United States troops and regrouped South Koreans, mounting a major offensive for the first time, have seized two Communist communication centres in the eastern and central part of South Korea.

But the see-saw fighting went on in the western part of the peninsula for the worse as American troops in the last 24 hours were forced to retreat again.

This latest battle field picture was reported today in continuing United States dispatches. The United States was aided by the fact that the Communists were unable to hold the line and American warships off the coast.

United States and South Korean forces went over to the attack on the east coast and on the central part of the front Friday when they captured two Communist communication centres in the eastern and central part of South Korea.

Final Stages of Island Power Project Rapidly Being Completed

Lower Campbell Lake, already backed up 50 feet as a reservoir for the John Hart Power Development, is due to rise another 20 feet. Logging operations are shown here, with the circle marking the former location of the Forbes Landing Lodge, now deep beneath the lake's rising surface.

Lodge, again open, is shown in new location on hill, with lake behind it. Lodge has a new road to its door. Fishing is reported good. Logs shown in picture at left have now been moved to McIvor Lake and will be disposed of.

Completed Ladore Dam is shown above, with sluice gates now in operation to maintain level of lake reservoir. Logging is necessitated prior to raising level of lake so that ideal fishing spot will not be spoiled by waters filled with anaer.

Security Blackout Lengthens As Canada Prepares Defences

OTTAWA, July 21 (CP).—The security blackout was lengthening today as Canada moved further into her expanded defence program.

The Army said it is prepared to step up the manpower and activities of its anti-aircraft arm, a budding young partner in the plan to build up a network of fighter planes.

guns, radar and instantaneous communications to cope with enemy air raiders.

Newsprint Supply for U.K. Stated Still Short of Needs

LONDON, July 21 (CP).—The Newsprint Supply Co. said today that newsprint imports from Canada authorized by the Government this week are still far short of requirements.

The company, which handles newsprint supplies to all British papers, said the new authorization would barely ensure maintenance of the present daily papers' size of six pages.

The statement by directors of the company followed by 24 hours the announcement by Harold Wilson, president of the Board of Trade, that Britain has made dollar allocations for importing 37,500 long tons of newsprint from Canada during the second half of 1950.

Correspondent Feared Killed At Korea Front

TOKIO, July 22 (Saturday) (INS).—Wilson Fielder, Time and Life correspondent, today was reported missing in the Taejeon sector of the Korean war since Thursday.

Reuben Kimball, a jeep driver, reported that he gave Fielder a lift from Taejeon Thursday and that bullets from a Communist sniper knocked the newsmen and a soldier from the jeep.

Kimball, under orders to keep driving his matter what happened, was in a 14-car convoy and did not stop.

Oddities

LONDON, July 21 (CP).—It was written into British law today as a precedent: A bicycle is a carriage.

The weighty and sedate King's Bench Divisional Court decreed it in settling whether Shane John Corkery was rightfully convicted of being drunk while pushing a bicycle. Corkery's lawyers argued a bicycle isn't a carriage and that the law of 1873 under which he was arrested applied to drunken gentlemen in carriages.

In support they quoted the old song "Bicycle Built for Two" which puts a carriage owner in a different class. Lord Goddard ruled the song was wrong.

WAKEFIELD, Mass., July 21 (CP).—A week voice asked Wakefield firemen over the phone if they would do a woman a great favor.

They indicated they might. "Well," asked Mrs. Arthur E. Goodwin, "will you turn off the gas in my home and save the carolers?"

Mrs. Goodwin explained that she was in Topsfield—39 miles away—and had left the gas burning under a pan of carrots.

Rustlers Taking Toll On Australian Ranches

MELBOURNE, July 21 (Reuters).—Rustlers are creating a "Wild West" atmosphere in Australia's sheep-growing areas.

Gangs have been making night raids on the big sheep flocks, and loading the animals into trucks for sale in black markets.

Some of the rustlers are strictly wool men. One sheep rancher has reported that he missed a flock of about 300 sheep before shearing time. A few weeks later, they were back in one of his paddocks—shorn.

THOUSANDS SHORT

The number of sheep stolen will never be known. Ranchers are not sure how many they lose. All they know is that their flocks are some thousands short—and they believe that gangs are making fortunes from the illicit sale of sheep.

Korean Briefs

LONDON, July 21 (Reuters).—Britain's service and supply chiefs will work overtime this week-end drafting plans for more concrete British aid in Korea.

The plans will come before the Cabinet when it meets next Tuesday, informed quarters here said today. The meeting had been tentatively fixed for Monday, but has been postponed for 24 hours.

OTTAWA, July 21 (CP).—Lieut. Lie, United Nations secretary-general, was officially informed today that Canada is "unable, at this stage," to send ground troops to Korea.

TOKIO, July 22 (Saturday) (INS).—The fate of Maj.-Gen. William F. Dean, commander of the United States 24th Infantry Division, remained in doubt today, 48 hours after the fall of Taejeon.

WASHINGTON, July 21 (INS).—The Army issued mobilization orders today for up to 25,000 National Guardsmen in crack regimental combat teams for service in Korea, and Congress acted to rip off the peacetime ceiling on United States military power.

WASHINGTON, July 21 (INS).—President Truman today ordered all Federal agencies to slash non-defense spending and give "first priority" to programs contributing directly to the Korean War effort.

Not Satisfied With Defences

SAN DIEGO, Calif., July 21 (AP).—The navy's top man today said he was not satisfied with present defences against possible submarine and air attack on this country.

WASHINGTON, July 21 (INS).—President Truman today ordered all Federal agencies to slash non-defense spending and give "first priority" to programs contributing directly to the Korean War effort.

Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, chief of naval operations, told a news conference that such defences must be increased. He said that steps are being taken to strengthen both the Pacific and Atlantic fleets for this purpose.

WASHINGTON, July 21 (INS).—The Chief Executive also directed administrators to follow the lead of the Housing Agency and tighten up other Government credit programs in a further step to check inflationary pressures.

Mr. Truman said the only exception should be those credit programs "which directly contribute to meeting our defence and our international responsibilities."

Warns of All-Out War With Russians If Soviet Troops Help North Koreans

WASHINGTON, July 21 (INS).—Chairman Vinson of the House Armed Services Committee bluntly warned tonight that if Soviet troops enter the Korean conflict it means all-out war with Russia.

The Georgian, a powerful military figure on Capitol Hill, stated that Russia's actions so far indicated she does not wish to precipitate "a general war."

He added that the Korean war will remain "localized" without direct Russian intervention, even if Chinese Communists are thrown into the conflict.

Reserve Ships To See Service

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP).—The United States Maritime Administration announced today 12 troop ships are being taken from the West Coast reserve fleet and turned over to the military services.

These are the first troop-carrying vessels to be withdrawn from the reserve fleets since the Korean outbreak June 25. They have a potential carrying capacity of 35,000 men or more—enough to move two full army divisions.

Morning of September 7 Set Date for Gorge Barrel Run

September 7 has been set for the Lions Club Gorge barrel run, it was announced yesterday. The barrel will be released under the Gorge Bridge "sometime between 7 and 8 a.m." that day, and those in charge of the novelty event say tidal conditions will be "practically the same" as those which prevailed July 4—original date of the run.

Through the purchase of special barrel roll tickets, Victorians and others are given an opportunity of estimating what time will be required for the barrel to drift from the Gorge Bridge to the Point Ellice Bridge, a distance of 1.28 miles.

Cash prizes totaling $6,000 will be awarded to those whose estimates are closest to the recorded drifting time.

All organizations affiliated with the Greater Victoria Celebrations Association now have the opportunity of selling tickets for the barrel roll—with half the proceeds going to the celebrations association, and the other half to the Lions Club. In this way, it is explained, it is hoped to be able to raise money to get the celebrations association "out of the red"—a condition reached as a result of the recent May 24 celebrations program.

DISASTER PLANS

Greater Victoria police team-work in case of disaster will be discussed at a meeting July 28 of officials from five police forces, Victoria Chief John Blackstock, head of the inter-force committee, said yesterday.

The meeting will be held at the city police station, and will be a follow-up of the Red Cross disaster planning meeting last month. One get-together already has been held. Time of the meeting has not been set.

MONITOR ON DISPLAY

Attracting considerable attention from many Victorians is the annual public display of The Christian Science Monitor, under way at 234 Yates Street between 9 a.m. and 8:30 p.m. daily. The display, aimed at presenting the international reporting of the publication, will be here until next Wednesday.

JOB PICTURE

There was little change this week in the ratios of job-hunters to the number of jobs available, National Employment Service officials reported yesterday.

In the men's placement section, the ratio rose slightly from 8.7 to 8.3-1. In the women's division, the ratio rose from 6.9-1 to 7-1. The overall ratio is up from 6.2-1 to 6.6-1. There is still a demand for highly-skilled male workers, officials said. The Victoria office has orders for factory-trained auto mechanics and an automobile spray painter, as well as several openings in the dry-cleaning industry.

NEW APARTMENTS

The city building inspector yesterday issued a permit authorizing construction of a 17-suite apartment building at 720 Vancouver Street.

Estimated cost of erecting the building is $85,000.

Dr. G. M. Paul, 3506 Richmond Road, was listed as owner.

Whitell Construction Company will be employed as contractor; John Harvey of Vancouver, as architect.

MAN INJURED

James RIDGWAY, an employee of the roofing plant at the Sidney Roofing & Paper Co. Ltd., received broken ribs in a fall at the plant yesterday afternoon.

He was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital by the Victoria Ambulance Service Ltd.

Decision for Drainage Money By-Law In Saanich May Be Ruled Out of Order

Saanich Council's decision to place a large drainage money by-law before the ratepayers in December may be ruled out of order.

At a special meeting yesterday, Reeve Joseph W. Casey noted the motion had been passed after 11 p.m., and no resolution extending the meeting had been passed. The reeve, who was absent through illness, reminded the council that its procedure by-law states a resolution is required to keep a meeting going after 11 p.m.

"I feel the decision to put up the drainage by-law is an attempt to kill the proposed sewer by-law," the reeve stated.

HAD BEEN FAIR

Noting the issue was brought up after he left the meeting, Reeve Casey reminded the council he had been fair in postponing matters when an interested councillor was absent.

"I have offered the council this courtesy and I think it should have been afforded me," he stated. He thought the council should have waited for a full council before such an important matter was decided upon.

After the reeve's remarks, Councillor E. P. Cunningham said the chairman was out of order in dealing with drainage because it was a special meeting called to discuss the water situation only.

Reeve Casey did not go further but indicated he would have more to say at the next meeting of the council.

Firemen Extinguish Small Fire on Dock

City firemen extinguished a small blaze at the C.N.R. ferry slip at Point Ellice yesterday. It took firemen 25 minutes to put out the fire which had broken out in the piling and plankings.

Firemen also attended a report of a house fire in the 700 block, Richmond Road. They discovered a pot burning on a stove had filled the house full of smoke.

WHEATHAMPTSTEAD, Herfordshire, Eng. (CP).—Firemen fought flames in a factory here with added vigor when they discovered it produced firemen's helmets.

Saanich Council Supports Reeve In Re-Imposing Water Restrictions

Saanich Reeve Joseph W. Casey's action in re-imposing stringent watering restrictions without first obtaining council authorization was upheld at a special meeting last night.

The reeve took it on his own shoulders on Thursday to re-impose the strict regulations and cancel the earlier restrictions decided on earlier in the week. The decision to ease up on the regulations was made by the council after Reeve Casey was forced to leave the meeting because of illness.

At the outset of the meeting, Reeve Casey said: "I instructed the municipal clerk to again put on the restrictions because I was besieged with calls from residents without water. I visited districts and confirmed these reports. Some areas which never before have been without water were dry."

MORE INSULTS

"People were making me to re-impose the regulations. The new ruling was passed at a meeting I had to leave. My wife has taken more insults during the past three days than anyone should ever have to."

"I did not lift the restrictions. I should not have been subjected to these insults and neither should my wife. Believe me, the council did me no favor in lifting those restrictions. I was home sick and the phone was ringing continually."

"The resolution passed after I left the meeting. That resolution deprived hundreds of persons of water. And I took the brunt of their complaints. I think before such a resolution was passed I should have been informed."

OUT OF ORDER

The reeve noted the council has a procedure by-law which states a meeting can only proceed after 11 p.m. by resolution of the council. The resolution never was passed and therefore all business done after that time is out of order, Reeve Casey contended.

"I want a resolution placing the restrictions on again," concluded the indignant reeve, who thought watering could be allowed from 8 p.m. instead of 10 p.m.

Councillor Sydney Pickles made the motion and Councillor Frank S. Green seconded it. The vote was unanimous. Councillors Leslie H. Passmore and John G. Ryan were absent.

Councillor Pickles, who returned only yesterday from a trip, said he understood the change was in the nature of an experiment which unfortunately was unsatisfactory.

H. D. Dawson, municipal engineer, said he regretted the affair, adding he was willing to take his share of the blame. After consultation with George Paton, waterworks superintendent, the engineer stated it was felt because of the advanced season, and the fact that more water was being supplied some areas by new mains, it would be all right to ease the 10-hour restrictions.

Councillors felt it was reasonable for the engineer to believe there would be adequate water. Some said they were dubious but thought it would be possible to get by.

The new restrictions allow a user to water lawns, shrubs and flowers on his designated day only between midnight and 7 a.m., and 8 p.m. and midnight. Vegetable gardens may be watered at any time during a householder's day to water.

Boost Ranks, Pearkes Urges Legion Branch

Members of Pro Patria Branch of the Canadian Legion were urged last night to increase their membership ranks by Major-General G. R. Pearkes, V.C., M.P.

He was guest speaker at the branch's silver anniversary celebration at the Sirocco Club.

General Pearkes noted that legion membership created a bond between ex-servicemen and was of great value to the veteran.

He talked to more than 400 Pro Patria Branch members and their friends during the branch's celebration of 25 years as a Victoria service club. It was founded here on June 14, 1923.

Featured at the dinner dance was a floor show with many well-known local artists.

Appearing were Don Ricardo and his dancing group, singers Pat Berry and Russ Potter, acrobatic dancer Louise Tibbett, and operatic singer Norma Palmer, of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

Feats of magic were presented by noted local magician William Harkness.

The earliest epitaphs that have survived have been found on the coffins and tombs of the ancient Egyptians.

What Is the Position of Reservists?

WITH due respect to the Prime Minister and to Defence Minister Claxton, recent announcements by the Government at Ottawa have left a good deal to be desired as to the precise status of Canada's immediate and future plans for a state of preparedness. Most people will appreciate that for security reasons there may be some things which cannot be told. Beyond that there can be no good reason for secrecy over national policy on recruiting, call-ups or other possible steps affecting many young men in the country.

The position of reservists is particularly obscure at the moment. Thousands of men from the three armed services who were in uniform five to ten years ago, have fully returned to civilian life, changed their addresses perhaps several times, and are completely out of touch with the situation regarding the ordinary reserve forces of the nation. They are asking now what the Government intends to do that may affect them. That is a natural question, and it should be given a straightforward answer. Apart from the Korean "incident," if the free world is returning now to a war footing in respect of defence preparedness the present hold-fast measures are only a beginning. What will be the rest of it? Will Canada adopt conscription in the event of a major conflict, or will she not? Why is the present call to voluntary enlistment spread over the ages 17 to 29, a very wide range. If the issue of universal service has not yet been settled? Who are on the reserve lists in Canada, and how will they be notified if they are needed?

The Government has the answers to these questions and they should be given. Otherwise there will only be confusion in the public's own response to the situation. Veterans, for example, who have re-established themselves in civil life, must be given more information before they can come to any individual decision, and they today comprise the largest trained body of men in Canada.

Bank of Montreal Favors Free Dollar

IN view of the rapid improvement in Canada's foreign exchange position, a strong feeling has been growing in some financial and trading circles that the time has arrived for the Canadian dollar to be freed of artificial controls and allowed to respond to changing conditions. The latest financial authority to give tentative acceptance to such monetary reform as the most practical solution to the country's exchange problems is the Bank of Montreal, whose counseling on the subject should carry considerable weight with the Dominion Government.

In the current issue of its monthly review of business conditions the bank dwells at length on recent representations for the return of the Canadian dollar to parity with its United States counterpart. While recognizing that there would be some advantages from revaluation, the bank points out that it would intensify the risks inherent in making Canadian exports dearer and imports cheaper, and result in increased reliance on import controls as contrasted with the present relaxation of these barriers to trade.

The review leads up to the conclusion that a return to parity might prove premature at present, and suggests instead that thought should now be given to the International Monetary Fund permitting any member a measure of day-to-day flexibility in exchange rates, allowing corrective forces to work automatically. "From Canada's viewpoint," it says, "much could be said for a flexible rate which would reflect and offset the changing conditions resulting from the country's relationship to the world's two great trading areas."

Leopold Going Back, But to What?

SINCE a Belgium in disruption is likely to affect other Western nations, it may be permissible to reflect that King Leopold could have saved his country much stress by gracefully retiring from its long-standing monarchial issue. At the moment that exiled monarch may see success in sight because a delegation is en route to Switzerland to invite him back to the throne, but it could easily prove to be a Pyrrhic victory.

The Belgian parliamentary vote which ran at long last in Leopold's favor does not mean an accepted end of the controversy that has split Belgium in two since its liberation from the Nazi occupation. There is the avowed declaration of the leader of the anti-Leopold forces that "this thing is not finished." There are Socialist threats of non-co-operation, of general strikes, and demonstrations against the monarch when he comes back. Socialists, Liberals and Communists are alike in their objection to Leopold, and it seems possible that only his eventual abdication will restore harmony to Belgium.

One other observation could be made, nevertheless. It is true that the majority that voted for Leopold's return was a narrow one, yet it was a majority. In a democratic country this is supposed to be a ruling factor, no matter how disappointing a result may be to a minority. Seemingly determination to so disrupt Belgium as to make it impossible for Leopold to reign, suggests that some Socialists at least are like Communists in that they are willing to accept only such votes as put them, and nobody else, in control.

COURTEOUS DRIVERS

Sir,—It would be nice if you can spare the space in your paper to say how much we women appreciate the courtesy of our American friends when they are driving. They will stop and let people cross the streets where there are no traffic lights.

It is a little act of courtesy that Victoria drivers could practise more often than they do.

CHARACTER EVIDENCE

Sir,—I believe many Canadians share my disgust for the methods being used to check up on national defence employees. The police are calling on neighbors and friends of such employees and interrogating them with regard to the character and reliability of the defence worker. Such methods are identical with those used by Hitler's Gestapo and the N.K.V.D.

The individual concerned has no chance to defend himself, nor to hear the evidence of the "witnesses." The "witnesses" themselves do not give evidence under oath and cannot be held responsible for their statements. In many cases those interrogated do not realize the purpose of such interrogation.

These underhand methods of gaining information destroy faith in our police force and cause great resentment in a community. Our civilization has little use for snoopers, sneaks and spies. There are ways and means of checking openly and legally on the background of Canadian citizens. Evidence should be taken in court in the presence of a magistrate and from witnesses under oath. The employee being interrogated should hear the evidence and be able to defend himself if necessary.

NURSING SHORTAGE

Sir,—Articles have appeared in the papers recently, under the names of Miss Ethel Brydeman and Dr. Charlotte Whittier, dealing with the existing shortage of nursing staff. They foretell the wholesale closing of hospital wards as a result of this shortage, and assert the ultimate result of this trend may bring about a Dominion-wide calamity. They berate the women of Canada and the Government of the country for their lack of interest in this threatened shortage of staff.

I would suggest that as far as this Province is concerned, it would pay to delve below the surface and find that there are here a tremendous number of well-trained registered nurses who are perfectly competent to nurse openly in such hospitals as the Vancouver General, St. Paul's, Royal Jubilee, and St. Joseph's, without having to cloak their British Columbia membership under the uniform of a nurses' aide, thereby avoiding prosecution under the existing Registered Nurses' Act. I, and many others would welcome a statement from the Registrar of the R.N.A. of B.C., that there are in fact no nurses unregistered in British Columbia, employed in any of the training schools, and I would remind that institution, that under this same act they have the power to prosecute any infringement.

It is still possible for the R.N.A. of B.C. to withhold membership to trained nurses who have over four years of actual training, until such time as the applicant is prepared to jump through the hoop of the association's devious. I do not believe that many of the registered nurses of this Province are in sympathy with the policy practised.

It would be more fitting if the writers of these articles would clean up some of the abuses which exist, before they ask for the support of the women of Canada and the Government of the country.

The Mummer

Strict I walk my ordered way
Through the street and duteous day
The hours are runs that summon me
To offices of hurry.
Cups and cupboards, flagons, food
Are things of my solicitude.
No elfin folly haply strays
Down my precise and well-swept ways.

When that compassionate lady, Night
Shuts out a prison from my sight,
With other thrills I turn a key
Of the old chest of Memory.
And in my spacious dreams unfold
A flimsy stuff of green and gold.
And walk and wander in the dress
Of old delights, and tenderness.

Ancient History The Masterminds Are Back

By FRANK KELLEY

FRANKLY, I do not know as much of the Canadian story as I should. That is probably owing, partly anyway, to the drab way it was presented when as a boy I "crawled like a snail unwillingly to school," where, with "shining morning face" one would find more of interest on the playground than the classroom could begin to furnish.

Canadian history, as taught then, was rather a dull dish for the youngster. It stressed, in the main, continual bickerings of opposing factions represented by the land's two principal racial groups, and statistics of strife, passing up the more colorful incidents with which the story of Canada, from the time Sebastian Cabot first raised its eastern shores, is more or less replete.

How much of this color finds its way into the textbooks of grade schools today I do not know. It is a pity that the romance of Canada did not rate more consideration than it did from the compilers of history books in the past. Apparently the writers believed in what someone long ago said about facts being more important than fancies to historians and so they set their statistics down according to rote and leave romance to flourish through mediums not entirely favored by historians.

At that, with those dry as dust "logs" of achievement published for school boys and girls in bygone days, on or about July 1, Canadian history can provide an interesting interlude, no matter what other attractions offer. The day presents the opportunity of turning over the pages of the land's recorded story. Last Dominion Day found me doing just that.

On this particular occasion my interest was centred on that period when the revolving New England colonies had won a measure of independence from Great Britain and the Loyalists were leaving their hearths along the Atlantic seaboard and moving into Ontario and the maritime areas of Canada, seeking new homes under British rule.

Maybe I picked that particular era at the time through recalling, reason unexplainable, some tales my paternal grandfather used to tell in his home on the hill overlooking Sydney Harbor. They had to do with the arrival of the Loyalists and what their coming had meant to his grandfather and fellow settlers. Ethics had little or no place in those days, it seems, where government policies were concerned.

Apparently his grandfather had selected, sometime about 1750, I believe, a choice bit of land on the shore of Bale des Espagnols (Sydney), Cape Breton. How he got there I do not remember ever having heard; had not been particularly interested evidently—when you're young you take that sort of thing for granted. Maybe he had been a member of some British regiment serving in America and had elected to stay in the country when discharged, or he might have arrived via the fishing grounds, which had even then been widely exploited by vessels hailing from many European ports.

Anyway his grandfather had come from Tyrone and he had heard much word-of-mouth history from him. He had some peevish too. He was not particularly happy when talking about the Loyalists and the Halifax authority following the coming of the Loyalists. Control of country had been divided between English and French when his grandfather had obtained the right to the land by licence, and was dispossessed without compensation, but stayed in the neighborhood.

And so it happened, as historians record, that many of the Loyalists pinned for the New England pastures and returned there. One of the returnees, occupying the land the family still owns back, whereupon my great-grandfather was allowed to return to his home, after paying a value placed upon it by Halifax, in favor of the departing Loyalists, so it was said. Graft? Could be.

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK.—Looked up the other night, at the sound of a hauntingly familiar word emitting from my giant, life-sized, seven-inch television screen. And there they were: Reborn.

The war commentators. I don't know where they hibernated or under which old rock they hide during the world's occasional periods of peace. But they're back in force, if that isn't too simple a military term to use in connection with them. Perhaps it would be best to say, in their case, that they are deploying key echelons to strategic Festung Amerika salients and are ready again to strike at the soft underbelly of Joe Blow's credibility.

Peace doesn't seem to have hurt them a bit. Am happy to report them chubby, comfortably saggy about the waist, and as gloriously sure of themselves today as they were when they were masterminding MacArthur's 5,000-mile wade from Australia to Tokyo and Bradley's break-through at St. Lo.

The assurances they gave us, as to the Korean situation, were a stern reproach to those troops of ours who apparently are trying to make the commentators look bad by running, dying, being shot on litters, and the like. The North Koreans are still palookas to the commentators, and, on this particular night, it was pretty stirring to sit there in the gloom surrounding the Cyclopean eye on the television and hear the man with the jowls and the loose upper plate tell us how our boys are going to roll those bums back to the 38th Parallel like a carpet.

The man was saying, in effect: "Get in there and fight, you guys. They can't hurt us."

The single word that sprang from my screen, and made me realize that the boys are back in the wind-jamming business, was "interdict." Remember that one? A World War commentator, radio or newspaper, who didn't have "interdict" in his story was, well, a pretty poor specimen. . . . one so thoughtless of the tradition of the corps that he even, at times, admitted that he didn't quite know how Tony MacAuliffe should get the 101st out of Bastogne. Imagine a commentator worth his salt folding up before the 17 German divisions that surrounded MacAuliffe's men!

Anyway, that was the word which came from the screen—"interdict"—the word that presaged the return of the prodigal pundits. Unfortunately, the World War lasted too short a time for me, among millions of other tense listeners, to look up what it meant. And by the time MacArthur got the Japs on the poop deck of the Missouri, we figured it wasn't worth while.

But here it is again, used in connection with the Korean War. So we looked it up:

"Interdict (in-ter-dikt), noun, to interpose, prohibit, (Fr. inter-plus-dicere, to say). 1. A prohibitory decree; a prohibition. 2. Law (a) Roman civil law. An administrative order, usually a prohibition, of the praetor. (b) In the Scots law, Dutch law, etc., an order corresponding to the injunction, etc."

This, of course, sheds even less light, especially since we always assumed it was a verb meaning "to run a spear through."

"Interdict" now seems to have something to do with the traffic in Scotch during the Volstead era. And other things. Thus it is a perfect word for the commentators, and we must congratulate them on finding it. It is double-talk compressed into a single word.

Could there be a finer word for the hurrah they must dispense? No! Let the North Koreans march as far as the Astor lobby, a primary target, and "interdict" will be their camp follower. Let the glorious U.N. forces counter-attack as far as the North Pole, and their chief weapon—if you listen closely to the commentators—will be a mobile "interdict."

Listen in any night, or read your favorite commentator, and experience a thrill you thought you'd never have again: the sensation of winning and losing simultaneously, and the comfortable feeling, if even second-hand, that you are sitting at the feet of Napoleon briefing the Grand Arme.

Welcome back, boys! Watch your girdles during the gesticulating with the pointers, when you're jabbing at those maps. And never retreat an inch. If you do, you'll go off my T.V. screen, in more ways than one.

Wage "Increase"

(From The Printed Word)

A STRIKE of workers in one skilled trade was recently averted when the employers granted concessions equivalent to a weekly increase of $5.

A friend of one of the workmen, congratulating him on the outcome of negotiations, was surprised to receive the reply, "Balony!" The workman then went on to explain that four of the five dollars gained in the dispute would go to a new pension fund, leaving only one dollar a week more to come to the workman in wages.

That wasn't the worst of it, from his point of view. The five-dollar increase put him into a higher tax bracket than he'd been in before, so most of that extra dollar, if not all of it, would be eaten up by deductions for taxes and unemployment insurance.

Sure, the workman said, he knew he was five dollars a week better off, but try to explain to his wife why she shouldn't have more money for her weekly shopping. To keep peace in the family, he was letting her have three dollars more a week from now on. That meant that he had to make out with three dollars less for himself. "Wage increase?" Balony!" he repeated.

Fun, Fact and Fiction

An Illinois child who ate the paper in any book given to him is understood to be practising to be a cornered spy.

The significant thing about the escape of those 14 baboons from the Detroit zoo is that they returned to the cage of their own accord a few hours later.

Sign in the window of a neighborhood grocery in a United States town: "Be Like Robinson Crusoe—Have Your Shopping Done by Friday."

Not only would a new world conflict be suicidal, but you can imagine what it would do to the bookstore proprietor caught with five shelves of World War memoirs.

UGH!

Since some doctors are reported to have a reviving faith in the use of leeches for blood-letting it may be hoped that those concerned are given full instructions as to the proper functions of the jolly little Mrs. Micawbers.

A former Bishop of Barking recorded how on visiting an elderly woman whose husband was ill and asking, "How is John today?" he was told, "Oh, he seems a bit better. The doctor ordered him leeches, and I didn't know what to do with them, and John didn't seem to fancy them much, but after they were chopped up with a little salt and vinegar he got them down all right."

The Packsack

By GREGORY CLARK

NATURE is superbly patient. When human beings fall in some enterprise, they say—"Oh, well, some other time." When Nature fails to make a tree grow in a crack in the rock, or when a forest gets smitten by lightning and is consumed by fire, Nature smiles and says—"Oh, well, some other century!"

Nature has lots of time. There is no hurry. She is bound to win in the end.

Man is almost savagely dissatisfied with all his designs and all his equipment. Nature is content with hers. The pine she has got will do. The moose, the chickadee, are ample to her needs. If one weed won't grow here or there, another one will. Nature just keeps on inciting life, life, life. She creates no new models. All her designs and equipment are as old as the hills. They'll do.

Man's only war is with Nature. All our little fake wars, in which we beat one another up, are mere rat aquila on the back fence in the dark. The useless and endless war is between man and Nature. In this war, man is frantic in his abandonment of old designs and equipment and in his creation of new. With triumphant cries, he announces, every once in a while, that he has found a "way" to make things grow without soil, or has come upon a drug that will cure another plague. But we still expect to live only to seventy.

Nature says seventy for us and fourteen for a dog. But we grope in our factories and our universities for newer and more olympian weapons with which to beat back the forests and conquer the lides, to rest and conserve the labors of man in his tragic struggle to stay alive, in a scheme of Nature that consists just as much of dying as it does of living. Nature detests permanence. She scoffs at security. To the twentieth century perhaps more than to any other Nature just smiles and says—"Oh, well, some other century!"

Many Win Right to Enter University As Examination Outcome Announced

Results of British Columbia high school examinations in June were released by the Department of Education yesterday.

Statements of individual marks are mailed to students and the department stressed that it will answer no telephone inquiries.

The names of those who passed are listed in alphabetical order. Students who have received partial standing and those who have obtained marks only are not listed.

Students who have failed to pass university entrance exams are given credit for all papers in which they have obtained more than 50 per cent.

University entrance supplemental exams will be held August 21 to 26. For Island students they will be at Victoria College and in high schools at Courtenay, Nanaimo and Port Alberni.

The following list gives the names of students attending Vancouver Island schools who passed:

Policemen Tell About Finding $1,044 At Goldstream Inn Robbery Hearing

A total of $1,044 has been submitted as exhibits by the Crown in the preliminary hearing of an armed robbery charge in connection with the June holdup of the Goldstream Hotel.

The money, found by policemen in the Finlayson Arm road home, where three suspects were arrested, has been submitted in three separate bundles.

Accused are Stewart Robertson, Wilfred Hutchinson and Edwin Hingley.

The hearing ground through its second sitting yesterday before Magistrate A. J. Thomas in the city police courtroom, and will probably conclude next Tuesday afternoon.

NO EVIDENCE

During last Tuesday's hearing, Ralph Calladine, hotel owner, testified a total of $1,044 was taken by the gunman. There has been no evidence thus far to indicate what happened to the remainder of the money.

On cross-examination by Arthur P. Dawe, Robertson's lawyer, Sgt. O. L. Hall agreed there was no way of connecting the money with the accused. James J. Proudfoot, counsel for Hutchinson and Hingley, cross-examined the sergeant concerning identification of the three separate bundles of bills submitted as exhibits. At one point Mr. Proudfoot asked:

"Am I safe in assuming you can't identify one bundle from the other?" Sgt. Hall replied he could tell by the addition slips.

REPORTS FIND

Constable William Stark told of finding in a car parked outside the house some polka dot dress material and a hunting knife. In a billfold, he added, he found a car registration slip in the name of Hutchinson. In the bathroom of the house, he continued, he found a roll of bills totaling $342.

"Allow me to congratulate you," Constable Stark stated he heard Hingley say to Constable Jack Meredith-Jones.

Defence counsels objected to the admission of a statement made by Hutchinson in the city detective department during fingerprinting.

Magistrate Thomas allowed the statement.

Constable Stark told of asking Hutchinson about a 30-30 rifle which he said he knew Hutchinson had the afternoon of the holdup. Hutchinson said he knew nothing about it, the constable testified.

A short time later, Constable Stark recalled, Hutchinson said:

"I might as well tell you where it is, as it is loaded and some kids might find it and get hurt. It is under the steps leading to the kitchen door."

When George P. Gregory, Crown prosecutor, continued, Mr. Proudfoot and Mr. Dawe again objected because they said they understood there was going to be a trial within a trial.

During Mr. Proudfoot's cross-examination of the constable, he dealt heavily on the conditions under which Hutchinson made the statement about the rifle. In reply to a question, Constable Stark said he didn't warn Hutchinson he didn't have to make a statement.

Constable Meredith-Jones told of finding a pair of pants on the bathroom floor containing a wad of bills. He didn't know the amount, he said, because he handed everything over to Victoria district policemen. The pockets, he added, contained 22 ammunition.

Sub-Insp. George H. Clark, commanding officer in the Victoria district, started to give evidence of an interview with the accused. On question by Mr. Gregory, he said he had given the usual warning. Defence counsel objected, and a trial within a trial ensued.

Magistrate Thomas ruled Robertson understood he didn't have to make a statement unless he wanted to.

Mrs. Elizabeth Wallace, sister of the accused Hingley, was called as a Crown witness.

She said a 45 calibre revolver introduced by the Crown "looked like" a gun owned by her husband. She said the gun was stolen from their North Vancouver home a year ago.

Mrs. Wallace told the court she talked to her brother in the Victoria city police station, June 26.

ASKED ABOUT GUN

"I asked him about the gun," she said. "He told me he'd been to a dance at Deep Cove and that he'd bought the gun—from two fellows in a restaurant there for $15."

Her husband, James B. Wallace, North Vancouver sign contractor, identified the gun as his by comparing the serial number on the gun with that on a small-arms registration certificate he produced.

He said he last saw the gun last August when he looked it in a gun case in the hall of his Seymour Heights home. He said he found the case smashed and the gun missing when he returned from his vacation.

Senior Matric Students On Mainland Win Awards

Six Mainland students won $200

Royal Institute scholarship awards by the University of British Columbia. They are granted for excellence shown in senior matriculation examinations throughout the Province.

Victoria's share in the prizes and in the list of students who passed appears small because Victoria High Schools do not give the senior matriculation course. It is given at Victoria College.

Winners were:

James Wilmer Smith, Kamloops, as the top student in the Province; Frank Powell, Langley High School; Thomas Kennedy Alexander, North Vancouver High School; Joseph Samuel Florentino, Cranbrook High School; James Allan Inglis, Abbotsford; Robert Lewis Large, Kelowna.

ISLAND STUDENTS

The list below gives Vancouver Island senior matriculation students who passed. Those who have been granted partial standing or marks only are not listed. Supplemental exams will be held from August 21 to August 26 at Victoria College and high schools at Courtenay, Nanaimo and Port Alberni for Island students.

Students who passed are listed alphabetically:

Similar Cost, Benefits

Private Hospitalization Allowable in Province

There is "absolutely nothing" to prevent any private company from establishing a hospital insurance scheme in British Columbia providing its benefits and premium costs are similar to those of the present B.C. Hospital Insurance Service.

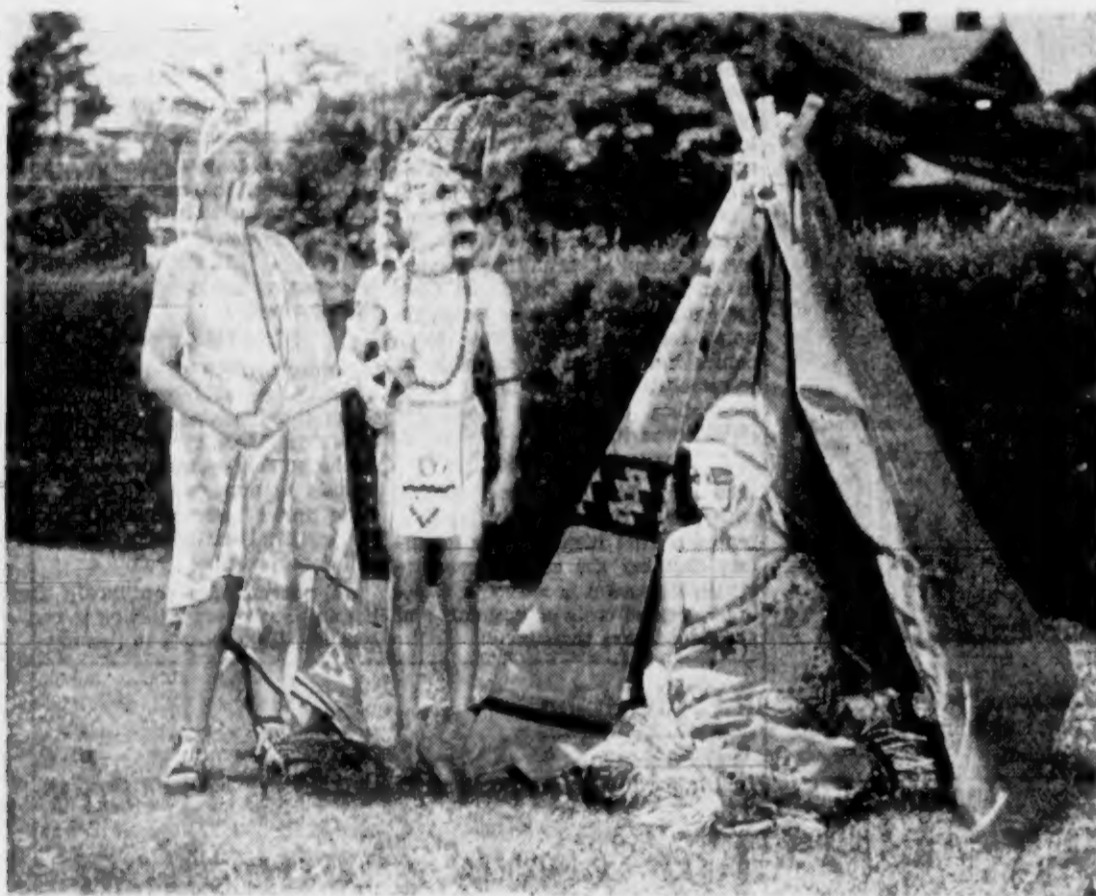

So said Lloyd Detweiler, administrator of the Provincial Government's hospital insurance service, in an address to the Lions Club yesterday at the Empress Hotel. He noted that no such private companies had sought to establish or re-establish themselves in the province since the recent provincial service was instituted.

BRIEF HISTORY

"Indian Day" Colorful Success at Windsor Park

Authentic Mohawk Indian costumes worn by Nan Dufour, 7, and five-year-old brother George, won two top prizes in Indian Day contests yesterday at Windsor Park. Costumes were made by Mrs. Patricia Dufour, 824 St. Patrick Street. More than 150 parents and children attended the successful event.

Young Indians Romp in Playgrounds For Final Oak Bay Special Event Day

Windsor and Lafayette Parks staged gala costume contests yesterday in the final special events day of the Oak Bay Playgrounds.

At Lafayette a decorated vehicle and costume contest was held in the morning with more than 100 children attending in 70 costumes.

In the afternoon at Windsor Park, the grounds resembled an Indian Reserve as children vied with one another in the contests of an Indian day.

DRESSING UP

More than 150 parents and children attended with 30 of the youngsters dressing up for the occasion. At Willow Park a combination of attractive beach and sunny afternoon resulted in such a small turnout that only a brief Indian Day program was held. There were no contests.

Mrs. P. A. Gibbs and Mrs. A. E. G. Musgrave were judges at the Lafayette costume and vehicle contests. Candy and ice-cream helped to ease the disappointment of the non-winners.

Here are the results: Five years and under—Prettiest: Lynn Archer, Most original: Alex Kay. Best vehicle: Walter Grant. Funniest: Elbert Maltman. Best cowboy: Keith Grey. Best National: Gary Le Boutillier. Special: Norma Higgins, Barbara Le Boutillier, Wendy Sanderson and Karen Child.

WINDSOR PARK

At Windsor Park, Mrs. E. Greville-Jones and Mrs. M. Grant judged the contest. After the contest, candy and lemonade provided an extra treat.

Here are the results: Best brave: George Keith. David Harris and Brian Carr-Harris. Best square: Nan Dufour, Wendy Archbold and Bonnie Jamieson. Best papoose: George Dufour, Allan Ferguson and Barry Lewis. Swiftest Brave: Alfred Peterson, Teddy Pollard and Allan Delamothé. Swiftest square: Joan Deprose, Marilyn Tucker and Elaine Ella. Swiftest papoose: Dennis Tucker, Brian Fugh and Gail Deprose.

SPECIAL DANCERS

At the conclusion of the ceremony a special troupe of dancers trained by Mrs. Dorothy Farrow, park supervisor, presented an entertaining program.

Those taking part were Carol Holdridge, Virginia Salmon, Pamela Lane, Sherry Rose, Stella Mahoney, Lola Vidal, Joyce Kohut, Robin and Chick Grinyer, and Sharon and Maureen George.

Opinion of Public Sought On Market Building Removal

ALDERMAN Harold Diggon, chairman of the market committee, yesterday asked for public opinion on a suggestion that the public market building be torn down and replaced with a parking area.

The suggestion has not yet been considered seriously, he advised.

"But I would like to know what the public thinks about such a plan," he said. "There appears to be two schools of thought on the subject."

He said he wanted to learn if most Victorians agreed with the suggestion that the market was of little value and should be removed.

If the public thought the market building to be of value, steps would have to be taken to improve sanitary conditions in the building, stated Alderman Diggon.

No Decision on Earmarking Of Sales Tax, Says Johnson

The Provincial Government has made no decision to date regarding the earmarking of the municipal share of the 3 per cent sales tax for a specific purpose, Premier Byron I. Johnson notified Mayor Percy George in a letter received yesterday at City Hall.

"But it should be definitely understood that so far as the Government is concerned the reason for the granting of one-third of the social security and municipal aid tax to municipal areas was and still is on the basis of assisting municipalities to meet the cost of education and social services," stated Premier Johnson.

SENT RESOLUTION

City Council last month forwarded a resolution to the Provincial Government opposing a suggestion by a Cabinet Minister that the municipal share of the sales tax was to be earmarked for education purposes.

Most of the municipalities of British Columbia have endorsed the Victoria resolution.

New Lighting Draws Praise From Scurrah

Alderman Percy Scurrah, chairman of the Street Lighting Committee, drew the attention of City Council yesterday to the mercury vapor lighting units recently installed in the 700 block on Yates Street.

Alderman Scurrah said he was "very pleased" with the results. He said mercury vapor lights gave 300 per cent more illumination than the old cluster lights and at less cost.

Alderman Scurrah asked aldermen to observe the new lighting units after dark to see for themselves the improvement made.

"I would like to get public reaction to the lights also," he said.

Alderman Scurrah praised Kenneth Reid, street lighting superintendent, for the efficient way in which the new lighting units were installed in the "test block."

Alderman Harold Diggon, chairman of the 1949 Street Lighting Committee which ordered the "test block" installations, declared that Alderman Scurrah's words were "balm to him."

He said that his committee had been criticized for attempting to bring efficiency and low costs to the street lighting department through replacement of the cluster lights.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"JOCULAR" AND "JOCUND"—Words of Different Origin

"Night's candles are burnt out, and jocund day stands tip-toe on the misty mountain tops."

—Shakespeare.

There you have "jocund" in the sense which bridges its origin with the connotation which it holds for us today. "Merry" is our idea of this word: merry, gay. And thus one perhaps ties it up with "jocular." However, there is an interesting difference in the sources of the two terms. Shakespeare's "jocund day," in the quotation above, could hardly be interpreted as "joking day."

First, "jocular" derives from the Latin "joculus," a diminutive of "jocus," joke! (Yes, the toga-ed Roman had his little joke, too.) When the poet, Dryden, wrote in the 17th century, "The style was partly serious and partly jocular," he indicated this word's orthodox usage.

Now "jocund" comes from the Latin "jocundus," deriving ultimately from "juvare," which is "to help." Thus it originated as "helpful." One might regard it as something of a commentary on desirable human qualities that this word, meaning "helpful," should at the same time have stood for "gay" or "merry."

"Of course, interpreters of Shakespeare may differ as to his intention in the use of 'jocund' in the above lines, but here you have in the round the story of the two words, 'jocular' and 'jocund.'"

"Colonist" SUPREMACY

is rooted in the homes of Victoria and Vancouver Island.

Great newspapers are not created overnight. They are the results of a large number of factors working in season and out, over a period of years. No newspaper can become an institution in the land unless it has EARNED A REPUTATION FOR RELIABILITY AND INTEGRITY. Such a reputation can not be acquired in a few months or years.

Nor can a newspaper's status be self-appraised: The public is the sole judge of newspaper worth and merit.

The status of a newspaper in any community is registered by the QUALITY, NATURE and QUANTITY of its circulation over a period of years.

By this triple test THE VICTORIA DAILY COLONIST has ranked FIRST in its field for over 91 years. Its efforts to give Victoria and Vancouver Island a daily publication worthy of the type and character of her people have resulted in the creation of a metropolitan newspaper which covers most of the HOMES of Greater Victoria weekdays and Sundays.

This splendid public recognition has placed The Colonist in the very forefront as Victoria's and Vancouver Island's community newspaper.

B.C. Red Cross Planning Huge Disaster Exercise

"Operation Mercy," a disaster exercise which will involve 80 Red Cross branches in British Columbia, is being organized by the Red Cross Disaster Committee.

This was announced by Disaster Chairman Eric Marsden in his report to the B.C. Division Provincial Executive meeting this week in Vancouver.

The unique plan will be province-wide, with branches co-ordinating a practice in a simulated flood, fire, explosion or other peace-time disaster.

The incident in each area has been predetermined by the branch in the light of most likely potential hazard.

SURPRISE ELEMENT
"Operation Mercy" is planned for early Autumn with all units getting a signal on short notice, the surprise element being a vital part of the operation.

Although the plan is a peace-time exercise, the Army, Navy and Air Force may be requested to assist in signals, in transportation preparedness or in an Army personnel alert.

B.C. Police, R.C.M.P. and the Amateur Radio Operators Association will take a prominent part in the communications. Central headquarters will be set up at Red Cross House in Vancouver.

Upon a signal reaching a given area, Red Cross volunteers, including doctors, nurses, civic officials, first aid workers and all members of the local disaster committee will be called to individual local headquarters.

Daughter Weds on Parents' 25th Wedding Anniversary

Her parents' twenty-fifth wedding anniversary was chosen by Miss Joan Beecher, R.N., for her marriage to Mr. Eugene MacLeod, Friday evening.

In a setting of pastel gladioli and stocks in Centennial United Church, Rev. W. R. Ashford performed the ceremony uniting Winifred Joan, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Beecher, 131 Lurline Avenue, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. MacLeod, 2838 Inlet Avenue.

The pretty bride, a graduate of St. Joseph's School of Nursing, class of '48, was given in marriage by her father. Her mother's full length veil of silk net, held by a coronet of orange blossoms, mistled the white satin gown fashioned with net yoke, off-shoulder neck outlined with satin ruching, similar ruching being featured in the full skirt. She wore a double strand of pearls, the gift of the groom, and carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and white carnations.

Maid of honor was Miss Elsie MacKillop, gowned in mauve nylon net over taffeta with matching shoulder length veil caught at the temples with mauve flowers. Her cascade bouquet was composed of mauve delphiniums and yellow gladioli blooms. The bride's two sisters, Miss Nancy and Miss Doreen Beecher, wore bridesmaids' frocks of yellow and pastel green embroidered organza respectively, identically styled. Their shoulder veils caught with flowers, matched their dresses and they carried cascade bouquets of Summer flowers accented with carnations tinted to contrast with their costumes. Little Jill MacLeod, niece of the groom, was flower girl, frocked in blue printed organza with coronet to match; she carried a basket of sweet peas.

Mr. Roy Strable was best man and ushers were Mr. John Cameron and Mr. Jack Jeffery. While the register was being signed Mr. Joe Almond sang "Because." The reception was held at Olde England Inn where the parents of the young couple welcomed guests with them. Red and white carnations to carry out the motif of the three-tiered caked iced in white with red-rose trim, decorated the lace-covered table. Mr. Oliver Beecher proposed the health of his niece.

Leaving for the Mainland to honeymoon in the Interior the bride wore a dusty rose gabardine suit with white straw hat, navy blue veil, accessories in the same blue tone and a gardenia corsage. The couple will make their home at 137 Lurline Avenue.

PARIS, July 21 (AP)—Pillbox and cone-shaped hats with tremendous pussy-cat bows of tulle or velvet ribbon attached to the back of them were featured in a Fall hat show given here today by Maud et Nano.

The pillbox shape stands about three inches high and sits dead straight on the head so that most of the back hair is revealed. Many are designed after playing card suits—diamonds, hearts, clubs and spades.

The cone-shaped affairs are similar to clown hats and sit deep on the head, just skirting the hairline in front.

Tea which was convened by Mrs. Bland was served at individual tables set out on the green lawns.

Those in charge of the stalls were Mrs. E. Emery, Mrs. McMillan, Mrs. Watson and Mrs. A. Jenkins, home cooking; Mrs. J. W. Collins, candy; Mrs. C. L. Pullen, white elephant, and Mrs. A. Armstrong, fancywork.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. R. Peers, New Westminster, B.C., formerly of Victoria, wish to announce the engagement of their daughter, Anne Katharine Frances, to Arthur Russell Latham, son of Mrs. Beulah Latham, 3040 Uplands Rd., and the late Mr. Arthur Latham. COMING!

Jeanne Crain Making Plans For 'Heaven Can Wait' Remake

HEARD IN HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
HOLLYWOOD, July 21 (INS).—Jeanne Crain is expecting her baby any time. After it is born, she will talk to 20th Century-Fox about making a remake of "Heaven Can Wait," directed by Ernst Lubitsch in 1943.

Perhaps you remember the story. A man dies and is interviewed by the Devil for admittance to Hell. He believes he is headed for fire and brimstone, but after he reviews his "wicked" past it is really more amusing than evil, so he is sent to Heaven.

Louis Jourdan will play the man, Fred Kohler is getting ready to produce it, but it actually won't be made until Louis finishes "Bird of Paradise."

ROMEO AND JULIET

Olivia de Havilland, who has read a mountain of movie scripts and has been offered many stage plays, may settle for "Romeo and Juliet." She is now talking with Kermit Bloomgarden, who produced "Death of a Salesman" and "Command Decision."

I was particularly interested because I know that when Olivia was in New York, Lawrence Langner had offered her "Romeo and Juliet" for the Theatre Guild, and I also know she turned it down. So the Bloomgarden deal will probably be quite a surprise to the Theatre Guild. But Livvie is a girl who knows what she wants to do—maybe that's why she's such a top actress.

EDWARDS SIGNED

That fine negro actor, James Edwards, who was so good in "Home of the Brave," has been signed by Mark Robson for "Lights Out."

James has just returned from a personal appearance tour through the Midwest and the South, where he talked to negro audiences in behalf of the motion pictures.

Arthur Kennedy, the star of "Lights Out," just arrived in town and has been working with a blind veteran ever since he got here, to perfect his role of a sightless soldier. One reason Arthur is so good is because he works hard at any role he creates. The company leaves shortly for Philadelphia where the picture will be made at the Valley Forge Hospital for the Blind.

CUTS COMEDY

Corinne Griffith has backed out of doing "The Fat Man" for Universal-International. She told Billy Goetz she didn't think her comeback should be a comedy, and that she would do a picture later.

In my life than at some of Bob's quips. He says just what comes naturally—coming up with bon mots for every occasion. Yet, Hope can be very serious, and that wonderful radio quiz show on the atomic bomb he's doing every Thursday night, which no one should miss, is on the serious side.

Maria Montez and her husband, Jean Pierre Aumont, have rented a villa at St. Cloud with a garden and a view of Paris. Maria, making a picture for John Brahm in Paris, doesn't figure on ever coming back to Hollywood.

Margaret Whiting's mother, Mrs. Eleanor Whiting, goes into St. John Hospital tomorrow for minor surgery.

Milton Berle has taken to dropping in at the King's Restaurant practically every night and taking over their disc jockey show. Some of the customers think he's a paid entertainer and come back for more.

Just had a letter from Sir Charles Mendel, who tells me that Elsie suffered so much the last week of her life, that all those who loved her can only feel relieved she is released from pain.

Uncle Wiggily Story

THE DOGHOUSE

Uncle Wiggily's new houseboat was something like a raft. This is the boat that didn't go down very deep in the water, like a regular motor boat. And, being flat like a raft, the houseboat could come close to the shore without nearing a dock.

So when he saw the new island in Frog Pond, Uncle Wiggily just steered his flat houseboat up on shore and let it rest there.

"All ashore who are going ashore on this island!" called Uncle Wiggily as he shut off the motor. "All ashore!"

"I think you should go ashore on the island first, Wiggily," said Mrs. Longears.

"Why, my dear, the rabbit gentleman asked."

"Because you are like Columbus. You have discovered a new island and whoever discovers a new island should always be the first to go ashore and take possession."

"But I am not sure that I am the first to discover this island, my dear."

"Someone else may have been here before I got here."

"Never mind, Wiggily, do as your wife wants you to," said Uncle Butter.

"I always do and I find it a lot easier."

"All right," said Mr. Longears. "I'll go ashore first."

"Then we'll follow you," barked Mr. Bow Wow.

"And we ladies will bring the lunch baskets," said his wife.

"Then we'll have a picnic," grunted jolly fat Mr. Twistytail, the gentleman pig.

"Here's the Swiss cheese," said Aunt Lettie. Now, Uncle Wiggily, hop on the island."

"The houseboat was very close to the new island. Uncle Wiggily found it easy to hop from the boat to the land."

"Come ashore, everybody!" invited the rabbit gentleman.

All the others jumped off the houseboat which was then made fast to a big stump on shore so that the boat wouldn't float away.

"Oh, what a lovely island. Columbus Uncle Wiggily!" grunted Mrs. Twistytail.

"You should not call me Columbus," said Mr. Longears. "After all, my dear, there may be someone living on this island."

"We'll soon find out about that," barked Uncle Butter. "Come on, Wiggily, you and I and Bow Wow and Twisty will have a look around while the ladies set out the picnic lunch."

"Yes, I think that's a good idea," agreed Mr. Longears. So he and the dog, the goat and the pig gentleman started off toward the middle of the island.

As Mrs. Twistytail had said, it was a lovely island. There were green trees and green bushes and flowers of many colors. Birds were singing in the trees. But as for any other animals living on the island, Uncle Wiggily and his friends saw none.

"Wiggily, I think you have really discovered a new island," grunted Mr. Twistytail.

"And we'll name it after him," barked Uncle Butter as he ate a piece of Swiss cheese and put one piece on his left horn by sticking the end of the horn through one of the holes in the cheese. "We'll name this Uncle Wiggily Island." How about it, friends?

"Yes, we'll do that," said Mr. Twistytail. Then Mr. Bow Wow, who had run off down a path, came running back suddenly.

"Wiggily," barked Mr. Bow Wow. "I don't believe we are the first ones to come to this island. I have just found a doghouse. Come and look at it. Come and see the doghouse I found."

"That was a surprise, wasn't it? I'll tell you more tomorrow if the rubber band around the bundle of papers will play a tune so the fountain pen can dance with the bottle of ink.

A Murder Is Announced

Nobody offered Miss Hinchliffe sympathy or mentioned Miss Murgatroyd's death. The ravaged face of the tall vigorous woman told its own tale, and would have made any expression of sympathy an impertinence.

"Turn all the lights on," said Miss Blacklock. "And put more coal on the fire. I'm cold—horribly cold. Come and sit here by the fire, Miss Hinchliffe. The Inspector said he would be here in a quarter of an hour. It must be nearly that now."

"Miss's come down again," said Julia. "I think that girl's mad—quite mad. But then perhaps we're all mad."

"I've no patience with this saying that all people who commit crimes are mad," barked Miss Hinchliffe. "Horribly and intelligently sane—that's what I think a criminal is!"

The sound of a car was heard outside and presently Craddock came in with Colonel and Mrs. Easterbrook and Edmund and Mrs. Swettenham.

They were all curiously subdued. Colonel Easterbrook said in a voice that was like an echo of his usual tones:

"Ha! A good fire."

Mrs. Easterbrook wouldn't take off her fur coat and sat down close to her husband. Her face, usually pretty and rather rapid, was like a little pinched weasel face. Edmund was in one of his furious moods and scowled at everybody. Mrs. Swettenham made what was evidently a great effort, and which resulted in a kind of parody of herself.

"It's awful— isn't it?" she said conversationally. "Everything, I mean. And really the less one says the better. Because one doesn't know who next—like the Plague. I—it seems so terrible of us—forcing our way in here like this, but Inspector Craddock made us come. And it seems so terrible—she hasn't been found, you know. That poor old thing from the Vicarage, I mean. Bunch Harmon is nearly frantic. Nobody knows where she went instead of going home. She didn't come to us. I've not even seen her today. And I should know if she had come to the house because I was in the drawing-room—at the back, you know, and Edmund was in his study writing—and that's at the front—so if she'd come either way we should have seen. And, on I do hope and pray that nothing has happened to that dear sweet old thing."

"Mother," said Edmund in a voice of acute suffering, "can't you shut up?"

"I'm sure, dear, I don't want to say a word," said Mrs. Swettenham, and sat down on the sofa by Julia.

Inspector Craddock stood near the door. Facing him, almost in a row, were the three women. Julia, Mrs. Easterbrook on the arm of her husband's chair. He had not brought about this arrangement but it suited him very well.

Miss Blacklock and Miss Hinchliffe were crouching over the fire. Edmund stood near them. Phillips was far back in the shadows.

CHAPTER XLII.

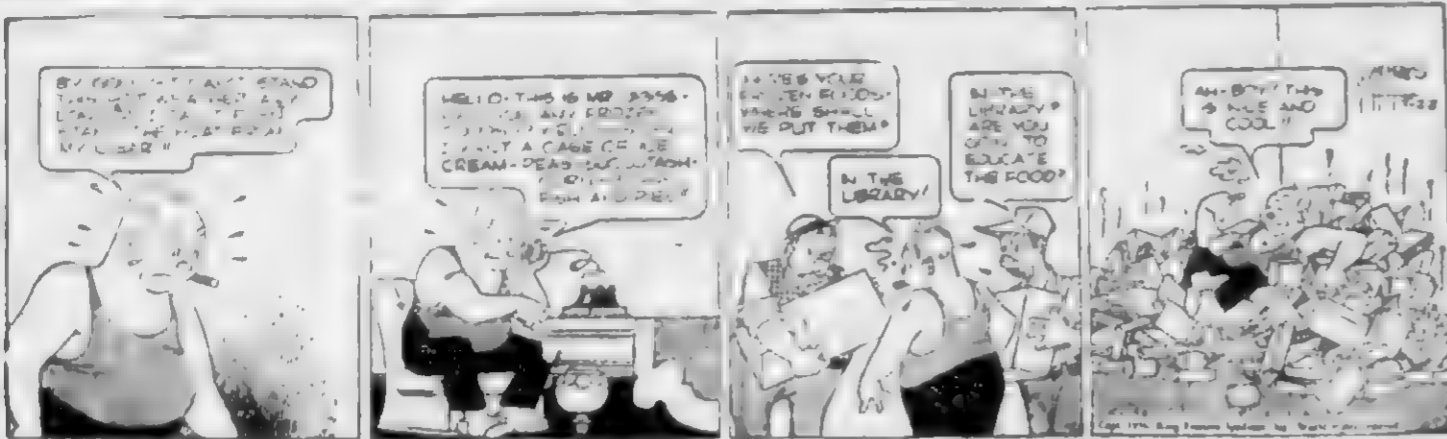

Inspector Craddock began without preamble.

"You all know that Miss Murgatroyd's been killed," he began. "We've reason to believe that the person who killed her was a woman. And for certain other reasons we can narrow it down still more. I'm about to ask certain ladies here to account for what they were doing between the hours of 4 and 4:20 this afternoon. I have already had an account of her movements from—from the young lady who has been calling herself Miss Simmons. I will ask her to repeat that statement."

All Federal Ships to Join R.C.A.F. In Marine, Search-Rescue Service

MARINE AND TRAVEL NEWS

A plan whereby practically all Federal ships, including the R.C.N., police, and the Royal Canadian Air Force will be woven into a general marine search and rescue service, has been announced in Ottawa. The plan applies to this and the East Coast.

Details were announced yesterday by Defence Minister Brooke Claxton and Transport Minister Lionel Chevrier. No new ships are to be constructed for the service—the new service to be an expansion of the air-sea rescue plan in effect in this area for several years.

It is likely the R.C.A.F. marine squadron at the Patricia Bay base will play an important role in the new scheme.

In the opinion of an inter-departmental committee which looked into the new marine service, "there is a sufficient number of ships available in each area to provide a nucleus for marine search and rescue service."

Among the craft automatically falling into the service will be those of the R.C.N., R.C.M.P., R.C.A.F. (plus aircraft), Department of Mines and Technical Surveys, Department of Fisheries, and other Government agencies having ships under their jurisdiction.

Ships' Plans Uncertain

A number of question marks presently hover over the Royal Canadian Navy's base at Esquimalt as far as certain ships are concerned.

Defence Minister Brooke Claxton has announced the destroyers Crescent and Crusader are to be made ready and recommissioned. Local naval officials, however, report no definite word received yet as to when the ships are expected to join the active fleet.

Unofficial reports mention September 1 as a possible date when the two destroyers might be ready for recommissioning. The two warships are presently members of the reserve fleet at the local base.

Other reports indicate nothing definite has been decided relative to the cruisers Ontario and Uganda. The Ontario is active and currently conducting training exercises, while the "Big U" is with the reserve fleet. Several days ago Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, M.P., suggested the Uganda be refitted and recommissioned "as soon as possible."

So far, no information has been received of other warships—now in the reserve fleet—being refitted and made ready for service with the active fleet in the foreseeable future.

At Yarrow's Ltd., there has been no reported order to hurry up a refit and modernization of the destroyer Algonquin, started some time ago at the Esquimalt shipyard.

KOREAN EMBARGO

The Trade Department announced late yesterday a complete embargo on all shipments to North Korea. "All outstanding export permits to this area have been declared invalid," the announcement said.

Similar action has been taken over the last few days by the United Kingdom, the United States and Australia.

This step means that Canada no longer may become either a source of supply or a stopping point for goods which may help North Korea to continue to drive into the South Korean Republic.

NEWS BLACKOUT

Navy intelligence yesterday placed a news blackout on further movements of Canada's three Korean-armed destroyers until Gen. MacArthur, United Nations commander, directs otherwise.

The warships were due yesterday at Kojima, United States naval base a week's sailing time from Japan.

A naval spokesman said today intelligence takes the attitude that since there is a blackout on movements of American warships in that area it should also be applied to the Canadian craft.

He disclosed that 200 men were added to the complements of the three ships shortly before they sailed. Their training strengths were about 215 apiece.

DEADLINE EXTENDED

An extension of the deadline for entries in the Everett-Victoria International cruiser race was announced today. It has been known in former years as the Nanaimo race.

Dale Cogshall, president of the International Power Boat Association, said entries will be accepted in mental committee which looked into the new marine service, "there is a sufficient number of ships available in each area to provide a nucleus for marine search and rescue service."

Among the craft automatically falling into the service will be those of the R.C.N., R.C.M.P., R.C.A.F. (plus aircraft), Department of Mines and Technical Surveys, Department of Fisheries, and other Government agencies having ships under their jurisdiction.

Among the craft automatically falling into the service will be those of the R.C.N., R.C.M.P., R.C.A.F. (plus aircraft), Department of Mines and Technical Surveys, Department of Fisheries, and other Government agencies having ships under their jurisdiction.

It is likely the R.C.A.F. marine squadron at the Patricia Bay base will play an important role in the new scheme.

In the opinion of an inter-departmental committee which looked into the new marine service, "there is a sufficient number of ships available in each area to provide a nucleus for marine search and rescue service."

Ontario Experiment

Employees Run Company With Profit, One Reports

Visiting Victoria is an Ontario man with a job in one of the most unusual companies in Canada.

He is James G. Lawson, former major of Gananogue, Ont. (1940-42) and employee of Parmenter & Bullock—Canada's first 100 per cent employee-owned company.

The company, which makes rivets and automatic riveting machines, was established in Gananogue in 1944 and became employee-owned early in 1946 after its 200 workers heard that the owners were about to sell out to a rival organization.

CAUSED WORRY

"The sudden decision to sell was the cause of considerable worry to our employees," said Mr. Lawson.

"Something had to be done, so two of our executives approached the owners and after a series of meetings they secured a 30-day option to purchase the company for $600,000.

"Many people said that it would be impossible for the staff to raise that much money in a few weeks," he said.

Mr. Lawson described how the staff, many borrowing heavily and others mortgaging their homes, raised all but $273,000 of the total purchase price.

BONDS FLOATED

"A bond issue was floated for the balance and was over-subscribed immediately—at the same time, a plan was drawn up to redeem their bonds over a ten-year period by means of payroll deductions," he said.

Advice on the running of such a type of company was given by a similar firm in New York City—a multi-billion dollar company which had operated for 29 years on the employee-ownership basis.

"Many people said it would fail but in the four years since we have reorganized, our output has increased even though our staff has been reduced."

MORE FROM LESS

"We are now producing more goods with a smaller staff and industrialists tell us that this is a remarkable feat," Mr. Lawson said.

He said that he thought that no one had a better right to share in the profits of a company than its employees.

If an employee leaves Parmenter

and Bullock, his share must be sold to the "Employees' Pool" and held for further distribution.

"We have redeemed $77,000 of our bond issue and wiped out a company debt of $130,000."

"We have among our employees harmony and tolerance—it's a grand feeling to know that our employee-ownership plan automatically eliminates most labor-management quarrels," he said.

ADDRESSES C.C.F.

Mr. Lawson spoke to the C.C.F. Club here last night as their guest during his holiday visit to the city from his Ontario home.

Also present at the meeting was Syd Smith, here in the city from Leicester, England. He is visiting a brother, F. J. Smith, 1528 Elford Street.

He was chairman of the Leicester Labor Party from 1939-40, and is now retired.

He told club members of the advantages of England's retirement scheme—a Government-sponsored plan to pay 25 shillings a week to retired persons over the age of 65 and 16s to the wife of a retired worker.

GRAND SCHEME

"It's a grand scheme and is available to everyone in the country," he said.

A presentation of a lamp was made to (longtime 17 years) C.C.F. executive member, S. P. Newell. Mr. Newell is moving to Mill Bay after living in Victoria for many years.

He said that he thought that no one had a better right to share in the profits of a company than its employees.

If an employee leaves Parmenter

and Bullock, his share must be sold to the "Employees' Pool" and held for further distribution.

"We have redeemed $77,000 of our bond issue and wiped out a company debt of $130,000."

"We have among our employees harmony and tolerance—it's a grand feeling to know that our employee-ownership plan automatically eliminates most labor-management quarrels," he said.

Small Bullet Hits Gardener

COURTENAY, July 21.—A stray 22-calibre bullet, believed to have been fired by a boy out shooting in Puntledge Park, struck the left index finger of George Bell as he was pruning a vine at his Courtenay home.

The bullet smashed the bone in the finger and had to be extracted from the side opposite to that which it entered.

Provincial Police said they had a lead as to the identity of the boy who fired the shot. They warned parents against allowing their boys to fire guns near populated areas.

Orders Tile Drain

ALBERNI, July 21.—Arthur T. Turner, inspector of the Helen Street Elementary School project, requested the City Council to install a tile drain to connect with the city's storm sewer. Lack of Care

DUNCAN, July 21.—David L. Plaskett was found guilty by Magistrate G. A. Tudall in Duncan police court on a charge of driving an automobile without due care and attention. He was fined $50 and costs, and his driver's licence was suspended for three months.

Constable K. A. Attree told the court that he paced Plaskett's automobile at speeds up to 60 miles an hour on the Island Highway south of Duncan, and the accused drove on the left side of the road on several occasions. He failed to produce a driver's licence when the constable stopped him.

The accused, in his defence, admitted driving on the wrong side of the road, blaming it on the hard steering of his car. He also said he thought as long as no other car was in sight it was all right to drive on any side of the road.

Children Sing At Vancouver

PARKSVILLE, July 21.—Five excited Parksville youngsters, four boys and a girl, appeared on the Horace Heidt Amateur Hour at Vancouver. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Liver, and have been steadily gaining recognition as singers in the district. They appeared a number of times on the radio and at the Capitol Theatre at Nanaimo, and twice won top money in Kinsmen Club amateur shows here.

They were recently auditioned by Ivan Ackery when he was on vacation at Qualicum, and their trip to Vancouver was the result of the interview. Mr. Ackery was highly pleased with their performance.

Dressed in bright Western garb, they sang mostly cowboy songs which they learned almost entirely on their own by listening to the radio. Margaret, 14, is the only girl in the group. James and Jack are 15; William, ten, and Daniel, nine.

Effective immediately, the following regulations apply:

Courtenay, Comox Ask Grant for Line Conversion

COURTENAY, July 21.—A grant from the Provincial Government to cover costs of the changeover from 25 to 60-cycle frequency in Comox Valley power district, will be sought in a letter from the Courtenay-Comox Chamber of Commerce to Premier Byron Johnson. Copies of the letter will also be sent to Hon. Herbert Anscomb and H. J. Welch, M.L.A. Estimated cost of the conversion is $200,000.

The letter will point out that Comox District is the only major area in the Province to be faced with a large expenditure for this purpose, and if the cost is to be borne by the consumers, a heavy burden will be placed on the economy of the area.

Chamber of Commerce members look on the forthcoming changeover as similar to a minor disaster to the valley's pocketbook. They think that since consumers will have no say in the matter of conversion, the Government should be willing to foot the bill.
